Louisiana for Cleveland.

WHAT SENATOR JONAS SAYS ABOUT IT. Senator Jonas, of Louisiana, a member of the national democratic and of the executive committees, is in the city. He has been in New York for some time, and says the outlook there is most favorable for the democrats. The senator says that the talk of democratic dissension in Louisiana will do if it encourages the Blaine men, but that that state will certainly go for Cleveland.

Why Sims Was Removed. SERGEANT-AT-ARMS CANADAY SAYS HE WAS DIS- ditional charges against Gen. Swaim. Col. Canaday, sergeant-at-arms of the Senate, when spoken to to-day by a Star reporter about the discharge of Col. W. E. Sims, of Virginia, said: "You can say for me, and upon my authority, that Col. Sims was discharged for cause. Senator Mahone had nothing to do with his discharge. I am not anxious to go into the details; but if Col. ing that he had "used positions of trust for the pur-Sims wants to have the public know why he was discharged, I can tell them. Senator Mahone never asked for his removal." The Indian Office to Move.

THE PATENT OFFICE. The Indian office, on Monday, will be removed from the Interior department building to the rooms over the Second national bank, formerly occupied by the census bureau. The reason for this change is ballot.

Souri, who have been in convention at Pierce City since Thursday morning, yesterday nominated A. L. Thomas for Congress on the eighth-eighth ballot.

Was sitting with his back to the door, but when Commander Schley abruptly left him he turned, and at the same instant saw his wife enter. With a loud cry he bounded from his chair, with eyes a loud cry he bounded from his chair. been occupying over-crowded rooms for some time, and at the last session of Congress the situation was made worse by the creation of three new bu-reaux and the addition of over flity to the examining and clerical force. The commissioner had estimated that forty-five additional rooms were needed, on the basis that each of the twenty-five divisions required an extra room, besides the division of issue and the rooms necessary for the storage of the records. The creation of the new divi-sions made it absolutely necessary that rooms should be obtained. The Indian office occupied 12 rooms, and while these would not be sufficient to meet the needs of the Patent office, it was better than nothing. The necessary room could have been secured by the removal of the land office, but there was no place for them to go, and that will probably de deferred until the new Pension building is completed. The assignment of the rooms in the new building has not yet been made, but it is thought that all the bureaux of the Interior department, with the exception of the Patent office and the Indian office will be removed to the new building. The Secretary of the Interior will probably retain his office where it now is, as the comof Indian affairs has decided to do. Mr. Price refuses to follow the Indian office in its moving. The Disputed Assignment. JUDGE WYLLE DISSOLVES THE RESTRAINING ORDER. Yesterday afternoon Thos. J. Clark, the defendant in the suit of F. P. Madigan, was served with a rule to show cause why he should not be punished for contempt in not obeying the order of the courtthe temporary injunction restraining him from disposing of the goods claimed to have been assigned to Madigan. This morning Mr. C.ark appeared before Judge Wylle with his counsel, Mr. T. F. Miller. Mr. H. W. Garnett appeared for the assignee, Mr. Madigan, and the case was argued on bill and answer, which were published in The Star of yesterday, as well as on the rule. The answer of Mr. Clark and the rule denies that Madigan demanded possession of the store, and says he was served with a paper notifying him that he was restrained as prayed and immediately started to see the bill and found that it was in the possession of the com-plainant. He was engaged in perusing it yesterday when Madigan demanded possession, and he re-plied that he would see him afterward. He had no purpose to disobey the order of the court. After argument by counsel Judge Wylle said the rule was in these cases for the court to dissolve the restraining order when the answer met the allega-tions of the bill, and he would therefore dissolve the restraining order. Inasmuch, however, as the respondant had disobeyed the order of the court he would tax on him the costs of the rule. This leaves the parties as they were before, and the case will

TWO OLD AND DILAPIDATED PORTS-THE ANNUAL RE-PORT OF COL HAINS. Col. P. C. Hains, in charge of the fortifications of the Potomac river, in his annual report to the chief of engineers says that the condition of Fort Foote, which is two miles below Alexandria, is one of utter dilapidation. The magazines, which at the time of suspension of operations in 1874 were in an unfinished condition, are rapidly going to ruin. As the parapet on the water front was never completed there would be no cover for the few guns that could be mounted. There are five gun platforms laid, four front and one center pintle. They are built of concrete and granite, and are service-able. No guns are mounted. The buildings are all constructed of perishable material, and are rapidly going to decay; but as the fort is not occupied by troops, no repairs are recommended. No work has been done on the fort during the past fiscal year beyond its protection, preservation and repair so far as possible with the general appropriation made for this purpose, and no other work is contemplated during the current uscal year; but an appropriation of $50,000 is asked for the next fiscal is a casemated work, the construction of which was begun in 1816. The masonry of the old work is still in good condition, but it is not adapted to receive guns of modern style, or for defensive purposes against such guns. In 1872 it was intended record is preserved from the campaign of "76." to convert the demi-lune into a battery of modern construction, with guns of large caliber. The platforms for four of these guns were built and the magazines partially so when the work was suspended for lack of funds. Three other batteries were planned, but no work has yet been done on them. At the present time the defenses known as Fort Washington consist of four 15-inch gun platforms, without a parapet in front of them and without magazines. The 24-pounder barbette guns in the old fort are practically worthless. This fort, together with Fort Foote, a work of less strength, if that be possible, constitute the defenses of the capital of a great nation. The buildings unoccupied by troops are generally in a dilapidated condition, but no repairs are recommended, as it is of more importance to mount a few

Hunting for Campaign Stories. THE WORK BEING DONE BY THE COMMITTEES-SEARCHING OLD NEWSPAPERS AND CONGRESSIONAL

LICANS LOOKING FOR READING MATTER FOR GREEN-The work of making records and collecting campaign matter is being vigorously, though secretly prosecuted. Both parties have men at work scouring through the departments and the Congressional Library collecting data to be used on the stump. Men may be seen every day at the Capitol pouring over old newspaper files and Congressional documents, taking notes of all matters which may in any way be of service in the coming struggle. The only compiled record of Blaine and Logan as yet is that published by Hooper, which is said to be very meager in its details concerning Senator Logan's history. The worst and best of Blaine is supposed to be pretty well known by everybody, the papers having thoroughly discussed the various charges | THE RELIEF SQUADRON TO DEPART TUESDAY-PROmade against his political character. PAYING ATTENTION TO SENATOR LOGAN. The most work is devoted to Senator Logan, whose political history has never been treated of minutely. His ante-bellum record is pounced upon and devoured by the democratic "birds," who claim it to be a rich morsel. They are seeking to elaborate what they claim to be his pro-slavery record and are digging out everything in his past and present political acts which might be made to appear inconsistent with his present declarations. They are trying, also, to get up an anti-civil service record against him.

The department officials are becoming warmed up to a fighting condition, and many are restless in their desire to make the campaign hot and aggressive. Considerable disgust is expressed by "Cleveland scandal," which was started at his home and circulated by some of the democratic papers, is being allowed to die out, and they are urging the campaign managers to revive it and make it a campaign issue. They remember that Curtis and the other independents have declared that this is not a campaign of politics, but of men and morals, and if that is the case anything reflect-

I hope your future happiness may reward you for the terrible experience you have had." After his brief talk with Lieut. The Secretary stepped up to the crew and said: "My men, your commander tells me you have done your watches registered 1:05, a 2:10 gait, and it was only a question of holding his own for the other halfmile. The Greely Relief Expedition. WHAT LIEUT. GARLINGTON SAYS-A REPLY TO CRITI-CISMS OF HIS COURSE-TRIBUTE TO LIEUT. COL-WELL

In an interview with a Pioneer Press representative at St. Paul, Minn., yesterday Lieut. Grlington, who commanded the Proteus expedition last year for the relief of Greely said: "Among the criticisms I have seen since Greely was rescued was one from Secretary Chandler in which he refers to the fact that the Yantic reached the spot I had left, and if I had stayed myself a party might have been provisioned and awaited Greely's approach. Such is the tenor of the criticism. Now, see how unjust it is. There I was with thirty-five men and rations for thirty days. thirty days. I cached 550 rations for Greely's use at Cape Sabine and then started to find the Yantic, or any other vessel I could, in order to save the lives of my own party. Commander Wikies, of the Yantic, found my records, in which I explicitly stated just what I had done. He had a vessel which he said himself was in good shape for a voyage to the West Indies, but was not at all fitted for an ice voyage. She was partly sheathed and that was all. She had 130 men and provisions for men for four months. Winter was rapidly approaching and he decided that he could not stay, or could he endeaver to push further, and thinks he decided rightly. Now, suppose I had waited for the Yantic, in what earthly way would that have bettered matters; instead of 130 men there would have been 165, and none of the other conditions have been 165, and none of the other conditions would have been changed.

"The fact that for years Greely kept his party together, and without loss of a single life, shows how great his executive and administrative talent in the was camped between the Beebe cache and the one that Colwell of my party made, and was foun near a cove four miles from the extreme point of Cape Sabine. God-forsaken! It is impossible to imagine a spot more so. There is not an ounce of earth; nothing but everlasting red syenite, which would be exceedingly valuable if we had it in the states, but isn't very desirable as a residence site.

"I want to bear tribute to Junior Lieut. John Colwell, United States navy, who was with me. I well, United States navy, who was with me. I don't know what I should have done without him. He is brave and judicious, and his technical and practical knowledge is limitless. Whether he was navigating a ship or sailing a yawl in a rough sea, he was equally at home. He was the executive officer of the Bear, you know, and I am assured was invaluable to Schley."
